

CONFIDENTIALITY

You have access to a variety of information regarding the students. This information may include test scores, behavior, attendance, family history, and personal records regarding the student. The most important aspect of ethical practice for you is maintaining confidentiality regarding the students and families. All school staff is required by law to keep student and family information confidential. Information regarding the student should only be shared with teachers and staff who work directly with the student.